District Secretary-Treasurer Richard Jackson (l) and Dist. 751 President Jon Holden discuss how to address issues facing our union.

751 Leaders Begin New Term With Renewed Commitment to Members

The New Year brought new union representatives and staff. The October 2020 elections and November 2020 District Council Officer nominations resulted in changes that became effective February 1.

IAM International President Robert Martinez administered the oath of office to District 751 Officers, Council Delegates and Business Reps at the January 12th District Council meeting via Zoom and thanked the leaders for their work to support our members. IAM Western Territory General Vice President Gary Allen also attended the Zoom meeting and addressed 751's leadership. Martinez took the opportunity to congratulate retiring District 751 Secretary-Treasurer Susan Palmer on a historic career (see story page 9) and welcomed incoming Secretary-Treasurer Richard Jackson in his new role.

The four District 751 Officers elected from the newly elected Council Delegates for the next four years are: District President Jon Holden, District Secretary-Treasurer Richard Jackson, District Vice President Matt Hardy and District Sergeant-at-Arms Mike Hill.

While many leaders are in new positions, they are by no means new to our Union. Each has devoted years to serving the membership, enforcing the contract, and volunteering their time helping others - gaining leadership experience each step of the way.

First, Richard Jackson was elected District Secretary-Treasurer from among the newly elected Council Delegates at the nominating meeting in November. Richard's election triggered other movement within 751 leadership. District President Jon Holden appointed Auburn Business Rep Jason Chan to serve as Chief of Staff.

Christine Fullerton, who was elected Business Rep in the October elections, will cover Jason's previous BR assignment in Auburn, which opened up a position in our Health and Benefits Office that will be filled by Jim McKenzie.

In addition, District President Jon Holden appointed Jeremy Coty to fill the open BR position (created when Jason moved to Chief of Staff). Jeremy will cover the assignment Dena Bartman had prior to her Feb. 1 retirement.

As these Union leaders take on their new assignments, the goal remains to put each leader where they can be the most effective in representing our members.

Richard Jackson

Richard has long been a strong and visible leader for our Union. He hired into Boeing in 1989 as a 30104 electrician after serving 4 years in the U.S. Navy. He stepped up to serve as Steward in his shop and also became a Local A Officer and Council Delegate. In

Verify Medical Plan and Dependents Are Correct for 2021

In January, several members working at Boeing contacted our Union to report that their new Boeing medical insurance cards were not issued for the plan they selected during open enrollment. Even though most of these members had not changed plans, somehow the new cards put members on a different plan.

Rather than simply putting the new cards in your wallet, take a few minutes and verify the cards you received in the mail have you on the correct medical plan (Traditional Medical Plan; Selections or Kaiser Permanente). If it is not correct and you were somehow switched to the wrong plan, start a ticket in Worklife.

You should also confirm in Worklife that your proper dependents are on your health insurance. Several members reported their dependents were dropped or a divorced spouse was mysteriously added back onto coverage.

If your cards do not reflect the proper plan or your dependents are not correct in Worklife, please

Union Ensures Daughter Gets Surgery

One member called our Health & Benefits office after learning his wife and daughter were dropped from his coverage. It was imperative to get his coverage corrected since his daughter was scheduled for surgery the next week, and this surgery had already been postponed because of COVID.

Health and Benefits Rep Les Mullen immediately called Boeing and began working the situation. When he could not get resolution through his usual channels and it was the day before the surgery, he elevated the matter to Labor Relations, who got the situation corrected so the member's daughter could have her surgery as scheduled.

"Without the Union, I would have had to cancel my daughter's surgery again. I am so thankful the Union was able to get this straightened out in time," said the member, who asked not to be identified. "The whole matter caused so much stress for my family, and I never received an explanation for why my dependents were dropped from my coverage."

REPORT FROM THE PRESIDENT

Positive Changes Help Build a Strong Future

By JON HOLDEN IAM 751 District President

February brings leadership changes to our District. Each move is designed to give our members the best service and representation possible. Our leaders throughout 751 take their roles very seriously and are honored that members have empowered us to continue serving the membership in our respective positions.

I also want to personally thank Susan Palmer and Dena Bartman for their leadership and dedicated service to our membership and wish them well as they retire on Feb. 1.

I have been meeting one-on-one with every staff member and Business Rep to hear concerns they have enforcing the contract, addressing membership issues, resources they need to fulfill their role or more effectively do their job, as well as getting their input on how our union can better represent and service our membership. We are also having internal discussions as we work to prepare our membership for the battles ahead, our 2024 contract expiration, as well as exploring ways to increase union visibility in the workplace.

These are important conversations and ones designed to build a better future for all of us. With the challenges of COVID continuing, forcing virtual union meetings only, we are continuing our monthly local lodge meetings via Zoom (see page 11 for registration links). These online meetings are an easy way for members to participate in our Union (remember not during work time). Every Zoom lodge meeting has a number of reps and staff available to answer any questions or address issues you may be facing. For members at Boeing, the job you perform determines which local lodge you are in.

We continue our union education classes via Zoom. On February 25, we are offering Advanced 1 - Labor, the Economy and Addressing Income Inequality at 10:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. The content always prompts lots of good discussion and information sharing. You can check out our ongoing classes at www. iam751.org, click Resources tab, than class registration (see page 5).

Health & Benefits department is putting together a Zoom webinar on financial planning pension/retirement paperwork. The request for the class came up at lodge meetings and our Health & Benefits reps are putting this together. Look for more information in the March Aero Mechanic.

Finally, when talking about education, I am excited that our Machinists Institute secured a $10 million grant dedicated to providing aerospace training to both incumbent workers along with the next generation of aerospace workers. In addition to that, the grant also provides resources for childcare that those taking this training will need. I am excited to see these come to fruition.

As the global pandemic continues, the need for union representation is greater than ever. Many companies have used these unique circumstances to cut their workforce, mandate overtime for those who remain, or cut hours of work and benefits to ensure profits keep rolling in. Union representation is the best weapon to battle these kinds of tactics from employers. Unfortunately, in recent years, many obstacles have prevented workers from exercising their right to join a union.

With a new administration in the White House and Congress, we hope to see an agenda brought forth that prioritizes workers. We need laws that protect our rights to organize, keep us safe at work, and advance economic justice.

Removing Peter Robb as General Counsel of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) was a positive move from President Biden on his first day. Robb was a union-busting lawyer by trade and mounted an unrelenting attack for more than three years on workers' right to organize. I am hopeful this year we can pass the PRO Act – Protecting the Right to Organize - to empower workers to freely and fairly decide to form a union.

On Jan. 25th, President Biden signed an executive order aimed at strengthening Buy American laws. This is a principle we have long supported, and hope it will create more family-wage manufacturing jobs here in the USA.

Since COVID began spreading across the U.S. in March 2020, labor unions have been asking for strong protections for working people. In his first full day in Office, Biden issued strong enforceable standards that will require employers to develop workplace safety plans, implement science-based protection measures, train workers and report outbreaks. We have demanded this at the employers we represent. But for so many Americans who do not have union representation, they have been unable to vocalize their safety concerns for fear of losing their job. This is just the first step in what we hope is a comprehensive plan to keep all workers safe on the job.

In addition, we need to continue pushing for resources for workers who have lost their job during this pandemic. Nearly every employer we represent has experienced layoffs.

In late December, we learned that Cadence Giddens will close its Everett facility. These members voted for union representation in 2015 and have seen their wages and benefits, as well as working conditions improve as a result of union representation. As they now face plant closure, our Union is again there for them. This time securing Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) and the various benefits and resources it provides to any laid-off workers from Cadence Giddens from July 14, 2019-Nov. 27, 2022. Workers at their Tacoma plant are also covered.

After learning they planned to close, our Union helped pull together three Rapid Response webinars that included reps from WorkSource and Employment Security to make these workers aware of not only available resources, but next steps. In addition, our union ensured these laid-off workers and their families remain eligible for our IAM free online college benefit for up to 5 years following layoff.

Again, this shows the benefit of Union membership – even after being laid-off.

Our union will continue working on your behalf for contract enforcement, contract negotiations, workplace safety, training and legislative action because every day we see the benefits of union membership and how important it is to have rights on the job and hope to bring that strength and solidarity to even more workers.

Union Stops Outsourcing of HVAC Work By challenging management, Union action helped protect facilities maintenance work from being outsourced to a vendor and kept it in the hands of our IAM members. Credit goes to Union Steward Ken Ogren for raising the issue after members were asked to bring in a vendor.

Our facilities members immediately recognized this should be IAM work, it hadn't been subcontracted before, and wanted to ensure it didn't start now. The members alerted Ken to investigate the situation for a potential grievance on a union jurisdiction claim and LOU 2. Ken enlisted help from Joe Raisanen, a member who has extensive experience in HVAC, to provide his expertise on the work and equipment in question.

After gathering the facts and documentation, Ken filed a step one grievance on behalf of 751-member Allen Speare, who worked in the area and stepped up to be the grievant. The work package involved maintenance and software upgrades to Ocean Breeze equipment that provides air flow to members while they are working in the tanks.

When Ken was unable to resolve the matter at lower levels, he elevated the issue to Business Rep Paul Schubert and Grievance Coordinator Dan Swank who brought the issue to Labor Relations. Our Union emphasized that not only was the work within the ability of our members to perform and was historically done by 751 members, but the outsourced vendor did not have the ability to perform the software updates or complete the work. The grievance also pointed out that management did not run the work package through the Facilities Maintenance Subcontracting Committee, who would have raised these issues before a vendor was called.

Labor Relations verified the facts of the grievance and agreed it was 751 work. They counseled management going forward to utilize their IAM workforce, including potentially offering overtime. Our Union emphasized since this work had not been outsourced before, this did not set any precedent going forward.

"This was work that IAM members had performed in the past, and we had the ability to do the work so I knew we needed to challenge this," said Ken. "We also had members holding WARN notices, which increased the urgency to ensure this work remained in the hands of IAM members. It was important to have documentation that this is indeed 751 work to stop any future attempts to offload this work package."

"Ken does a great job enforcing the contract and keeps a keen eye for any potential violations. By keeping watch and speaking up, he ensures contract violations do not go unchecked," said Business Rep Paul Schubert. "If a member believes there is a contractual issue, bring it to your Steward. They are our eyes and ears on the floor and our first line of defense in defending our contract."

CHI Workers Prepare to Enter First Contract Bargaining

After selecting IAM for union representation, workers at CHI Franciscan hospice for master social workers, bereavement counselors and hospice RNs, already see the value in their decision. Since voting for representation, the groups have selected their negotiating committees, began prioritizing issues and had their selected leaders take part in an intensive 4-week negotiation preparation training class, with other 751 leaders who will be involved in bargaining.

The contract negotiations training offered by the and thorough. It covers several critical areas that are valuable for any bargaining team:

- a comprehensive deep dive into the process of collective bargaining;
- orientation to the strategy and tactics that are essential for effective negotiation; and
- · perhaps most importantly, a practical, hands-on preparation work session for the specific negotiations that our bargaining team will face as we engage with

Grand Lodge through Winpisinger Center is extensive CHI to improve wages, hours and working conditions for these critical health care workers.

> The training began with an overview of the collective bargaining process, including the legal parameters for negotiation, the overall value that union negotiations can bring to workers as well as the limits of the process. From here, the training moved on to the core principles that drive how effective negotiators achieve meaningful results. These principles obviously have broader value for every participant as we are constantly negotiating every day with our employers, but also with our family members, our co-workers, and others in our community.

> In most negotiation training sessions, that would be the end of the training, but the Grand Lodge instructors take a much deeper dive into the economics of a collective bargaining agreement. Participants learn the critical skill—that few know, and even fewer utilize—as to how to cost a contract. This process, which involves reducing every economic benefit to a standardized value (both individually and across the group as a whole), helps bargaining committees make rational decisions about what goals to prioritize.

> The research team at our International then provided the bargaining team with meaningful information about CHI itself, its leadership, its organizational structure, its stakeholders and its points of strength and vulnerability. Our bargaining team was therefore armed with tools to use to increase our leverage.

> Finally, the instruction concluded with an absolutely critical hands-on exercise in which bargaining committee members developed their own proposals to address three issues critical to the group, built strong justifications as to why the proposal should be accepted, and they presented their proposals to the "employer" in a mock across-the-table session. As with everything else in life, there is no better way to learn a skill than to exercise it. With all of these elements, our bargaining team completed a training well-armed and prepared for on January 11th with the first ever virtual session due to the ongoing global pandemic. In odd-numbered years, the legislative session meets for 105 days to adopt a two-year operating budget, a transportation budget and a capital budget.

As you might imagine the pandemic has resulted in a tremendous decline in State revenue, while there has been an increasing need for state services. This makes the legislators' job even more difficult.

When bills are introduced in Olympia that are either beneficial or harmful to workers, look for District 751 to weigh in on this legislation.

On Jan. 21st, 751 Chief of Staff Jason Chan joined other labor leaders in testifying against SB 5137. This bill would suspend workers' compensation cost-of-living adjustments for the fiscal year 2022, change the basis of certain future adjustments, and cap the rate of increase for future adjustments (lowering the amount paid to injured workers).

Jason explained how the work our members perform

The 2021 Washington State Legislative Session began is very physical and often results in an injury during their career. He outlined the importance of keeping the current cost of living clause.

> "None of our members chose to be injured, it is a hazard of the job. But they shouldn't be discarded when they are broken after companies reap profits literally off their backs, shoulders, and knees. These workers are paying a huge price sacrificing their bodies; don't make it harder for them to survive," Jason said in video testimony.

> Others testifying in opposition pointed out that Washington State is one of the only states where workers pay a portion of the workers' comp premium – another compelling reason to maintain the current cost of living language.

Should this or other bills pertaining to workers make it out of committee for a vote, look for emails and web posts asking members to call their legislators to take appropriate action. Members can contact their legislators by calling 1-800-562-6000.

Therefore, we again encourage all members to check their insurance cards, make sure you are on the correct plan and log into Worklife and verify your dependents are covered before you are requiring health care. It is easier to correct earlier in the year, than when critical coverage is needed for a medical emergency.

Also be aware Boeing changed providers of their prescription coverage for 2021, which was announced in a Boeing mailer. Before vou get prescriptions filled in 2021 (even ongoing ones with automatic refills), you will want to verify the pharmacy is covered by your plan. Also be sure to provide your new card to the pharmacy so it is billed correctly, and you aren't paying

Keep in mind even if you didn't change medical plans the OLD medical card will not work at the pharmacy because the new ones have the codes the pharmacist needs at the bottom. March 1 Deadline for 2020 Safety Shoe Reimbursement

The $75 per year contractual Safety Shoe Reimbursement Program is one of the IAM/Boeing Joint Programs benefits available to IAM members. Each year the IAM/Boeing Joint Programs allows a grace period for employees to take care of their previous year's safety shoe purchases. March 1st is the deadline for turning in applications for safety shoe reimbursements for purchases made in 2020.

This year IAM/Boeing Joint Programs wants to remind you of the process improvements made to allow electronic submissions of the reimbursement applications via e-mail.

You must attach the reimbursement application (you can download the form at http://www.iamboeing.com/safety-shoes.shtml) and a copy of the itemized receipt (shows date purchased, specific item name and the price of the safety shoes) to the e-mail and send them to: IAMBoeingJointProgramsEA@ exchange.boeing.com or JointProgramsWebsite@ exchange.boeing.com

Reimbursement applications and itemized receipts can still be:

- Sent via the Boeing in-plant mail to:
- IAM/Boeing Joint Programs at Mail Code 4L-101
- Dropped off at the IAM/Boeing Joint Programs main office in Tukwila in the 9-110 building. Note: Office hours are limited due to COVID-19 restrictions (Mon 7am - 3pm, Wed 7am - 6pm, Fri 7am - 3pm)
 - Mailed via the US Postal mail to:
 - IAM/Boeing Joint Programs

Everett Fabrication and Delivery Joint Programs Answer the Call for Help

Emergency washing facilities are often an integral part of any safety program. They include permanently plumbed eyewash stations, showers and combination eyewash/shower stations as well as portable eyewash stations, which are located throughout the factory sites. These facilities often offer the first steps of a medical response before the paramedics arrive. It is imperative they are operative at all times and are inspected on a weekly basis to ensure they are functioning properly.

During the inspection process, when it was found that there were opportunities to enhance safety in this area, Joint Programs partnered with Environmental Health & Safety (EHS) and Everett Fabrication and Delivery to help work on a better communication method to help reach the members on the floor.

Everett Fabrication and Delivery Joint Programs Program Coordinators Thong Trang and Bob Brady went to work partnering with Shannon Bui from EHS and with IAM Safety Coordinator Bruce Kaufman. They took time to understand the EHS inspection requirements and interviewed members on the shop floor to understand where the gaps were with regards to the inspections. They determined a standardized process was needed, as well as a clearer explanation of "how" to perform the eyewash station inspections properly to ensure compliance with the requirements.

Thong and Bob decided this would be a great opportunity to utilize the Joint Programs Multimedia department to develop a step-by-step "how to" video for the inspections. They reached out to their fellow Joint Programs Program Coordinators Adrian Camez and Tim Johnson and Joint Programs videographer Miller Stevens to collaborate on getting a video made. As the video was in work, the inspection requirements were updated and because of the close working relationship between the parties involved they were able to quickly make adjustments and incorporate the changes in the final video.

The Joint Programs teams wanted an accurate detailed instruction video that showed easy to follow steps. They relied on the knowledge and experience Bruce Kaufman brought to the table with helping them understand the proper steps needed to successfully perform the inspections. They also incorporated Bruce's help by having him narrate the video as well.

The video, titled "Eyewash Station Update Awareness Training," was completed within a month and shared with Everett EHS and Front Line leaders who gave it a big thumbs

Training" video which can be accessed on the Boeing internal website is: http://jpiscm.web.boeing.com/jp iscm/84034 Eyewash/story html5.html

Recognizing how valuable this "Eyewash Station Update Awareness Training" video would be for the other sites in Puget Sound, Joint Programs produced a second generic version for use at other sites. This is a great example of how sharing information between sites makes all locations safer.

Engaging the IAM Safety Coordinators and members on the shop floor for their valuable input ensures the "Eyewash Station Update Awareness Training" video will be another tool to help the sites see how to perform the required inspections in a standardized manner and help them successfully pass any internal EHS audits on the process.

Ultimately, this also shows how Everett Fabrication and Delivery Joint Programs continue to embrace and further the developing partnership with EHS for the safety of our members and by answering calls for help.

Union Classes Offered Via Zoom

Knowledge is power is certainly true in the labor movement. The more members educated on our Union history, their rights, and collective power, the stronger we will be.

District 751 is offering education classes via Zoom. Visit www.iam751.org (click Resources tab, then class registration) to sign up for education classes.

Union classes rotate between topics. February classes will be held on Thursday, February 25th at either 10:30 a.m. or 3:30 p.m. via Zoom and feature Advanced 1 - Labor, the Economy, and Addressing Income Inequality. Advanced 1: Labor, the Economy, and Addressing Income Inequality

We are again living in the time of the Robber Barons. The rich have gotten much richer and the poor have gotten poorer. While the middle class shrinks, wealth inequality is reaching dizzying heights, affecting all working people.

Union workers and all workers are under attack.

Join special guest from Washington Labor Center, Emilie Slater for an engaging discussion on political and economic inequality, their origins and, crucially, the ways in which workers have fought back and won to reclaim our fair share.

We will delve into US labor history and IAM 751's local history, and discuss economics from the worker perspective, including the 2007 economic crisis and its lasting impact on working families. Presentations will explain the skyrocketing costs of housing and healthcare, the student loans & household debt crisis, the consumer price index, and increase in gross income inequality. As a group we will tie the past to the present, in order to illuminate ways forward in our present time.

We'll look closely at the union difference in wages, benefits, safety, and working conditions. We know unions make a difference in our lives as union members, but this presentation and discussion will explore how labor organizing has broader impacts and deep ties to other social movements such as the fight for civil rights.

Get the facts and discuss tools to build your union power, fight back against wealth inequality and win!

"Empowered and informed members make us a stronger union," said District 751 President Jon Holden. "There is no greater investment we can make as an organization than to educate our members. I hope more members will decide to join these Zoom classes and grow our power."

More than 120 members took part in both the December and January Union Education meetings. Knowledge is power so sign up today!

Machinists Institute Awarded $10 Million Grant to Expand Training Opportunities

Peschek states "this funding will increase access and opportunity for registered apprenticeship pathways into family sustaining careers that create a highly skilled workforce. It's a win for business and Washington workers and we are excited to make that happen."

The grant also highlights child care — as it is a major hurdle for current workers and registered apprenticeships to career advancement. The Machinists Institute noted the number of child care providers has been cut by half over the last decade.

"One of the things we plan to do is find solutions to address child care capacity for nonstandard work schedules," said Peschek, MI executive director. "We also want to support the child care provider workforce and will work towards supporting a registered apprenticeship pathway for early childhood education."

751 Leaders Begin New Term of Office With Renewed Commitment to Members

2000, Richard was appointed as an IAM Work Transfer Rep (a contractual position called out in the 1999 contract negotiations) to fight Boeing's subcontracting decisions and propose alternatives to keep the work inhouse. In 2007, he was appointed Business Rep in Everett, where he worked diligently for 7 years representing more than 2,500 members working on the 767 and KC-46 tanker program.

In 2014, Richard was appointed Chief of Staff - a senior assistant and critical leader who is part of President Holden's leadership team. In that role, he helped negotiate contracts for our members working at aerospace suppliers and defense L to R: Strother Moore and Dylan Langel discuss contract contractors, and served as Business Rep for members working at defense contractors at Whidbey Island Naval Air Station. As Chief of Staff, he also handled many calls from members, worked various issues for members at Boeing and supported our Business Reps.

Richard Jackson is driven by his desire to help others, where he continues to volunteer on community service projects, as well as serving as chair of the 751 Human Rights Committee.

Jason Chan

While Jason will miss working closely with the Stewards from his BR assignment, he is excited to take on the added responsibilities that come with Chief of Staff. Prior to becoming BR, he served as a Union Organizer, helped with union education classes, and spent 3 years as an IAM Work Transfer Rep in Renton, after working way through Local leadership the role President.

Business Rep Christine Fullerton (2nd from right) talking with members Scott Arne, Ryan Johnson and Steward Ariel McKenzie and letting them know she is the Business Rep for their building in Auburn.

Jason's other union leadership roles include District Vice President, Local A Vice President, District Council Delegate, and serving on the HSI Site Safety Committee, and District Finance Committee.

He hired into the Renton wingline in 2008 and was inspired to become an activist after experiencing our solidarity during the strike later that year.

A driving force for Jason is his desire to help others – making him a natural union leader. Whether it is assisting members with contractual issues on the shop floor, attempting to bring the benefits of union membership to other workers, building wheelchair ramps for area residents or taking part in a multitude of other community service projects, if it will help others Jason is there.

He is also a strong leader for the IAM in the Asian Pacific American Labor Alliance (APALA) and serves on their National Executive Board, and remains active in the King County Labor Council.

Christine Fullerton

Christine has been an IAM member for more than 33 years working as a Machined Parts Inspector in Auburn and Plant II. Since September, Christine has worked as a Health and Benefits Rep where she assisted members with pension, medical, dental, leave and many other issues. She is passionate about serving the membership and helping others in the community and excited to serve the members as a Business Rep.

Christine worked several years at IAM-Boeing Joint Programs, as both a Program Administrator and Coordinator—helping resolve safety issues and promoting education benefits through Joint Programs. Prior to

accepting a full-time union position at Joint Programs in 2016, Christine worked her way up through the ranks of Local F leadership serving as Recording Secretary, District Council Delegate, Local F Financial Secretary, Conductor-Sentinel, Auditor and Trustee. Christine has been an advocate for safety on the job throughout her career and served many years on the District Safety and Joint Programs Site Safety Committees, as well as serving many years as an active Steward. Christine has been active on the Legislative and Labor History Committees and assisted with fundraisers for Guide Dogs, various rallies, contract votes, strikes, events and > organizing drives. She was also a delegate to 2016 the Grand Lodge Convention and helped e n s u r e passage of Membership Bill Rights.

Christine recognized the value of educational benefits in the IAM-Boeing contract and used them to complete a bachelor's degree from the University of Phoenix when she was facing layoff earlier in her career.

Jeremy Coty

As a new Business Rep, Jeremy is eager to meet the Stewards and members in his new assignment.

Jeremy has been an active Union member for the past 14 years, but literally grew up in the Machinists Union with both his parents serving as active members and leaders. As a Tooling and Machined Parts Inspector, Jeremy served as Union Steward for 8 years. Jeremy worked his way through leadership in Local F to serve as Recording Secretary and District Council delegate after first serving as Auditor and Conductor Sentinel. For the past year and half, Jeremy has been one of our Verification Optimization Reps for the south end, challenging Boeing's attempts remove inspections from the production process.

Jeremy has fought for workplace safety serving 4 years on District Safety, the Auburn Site Safety the Safety and Education Committee. He has been active on the Labor History and Legislative Committees. He regularly volunteers to help with Guide Dogs Fundraisers, and community service activities that include Salvation Army Toy N Joy and bell ringing, Northwest Harvest Food Drives and Warehouse activities, and a number of other activities including showing solidarity at other union rallies and

He, too, understands the value of our educational benefits and used them to complete both his Bachelor's and Masters' Degree.

His assignment will cover members at Renton and Seattle Flight Line, Paint Hangers, Spares Distribution Center, and many more (see chart, page 7 for specific building assignments).

Jim McKenzie

Jim has been an IAM member for the past 12 years working as a Machine Repair Mechanic in Auburn. But his commitment to the labor movement goes back much further. He has been a strong Union member for more than 36 years – as a Teamsters member in his previous job.

Jim brings drive compassion to his position in Health and Benefits and is excited to help our members in his new position.

Throughout career, Jim has been a vocal leader on the floor a Union Steward. worked his way up through Local leadership serving Local C President the past 3 years. He has been

IP Martinez Swears In Incoming District 751 Officers

Newly-elected district officers of IAM District 751 were sworn in by IAM International President Robert Martinez Jr on Jan. 12th during 751's District Council meeting via Zoom.

President Directing and Business Representative Jon Holden, District Secretary-Treasurer Richard Jackson and 16 District 751 Business Representatives also took their oath of office that evening for their four-year terms that begin on February 1, 2021.

Following the swearing in ceremony, Martinez and Western Territory General Vice President Gary Allen addressed the officers, delegates and alternates.

"Myself, GVP Allen and our entire union are incredibly proud of the resilience the leadership of District 751 has shown during this pandemic," said Martinez. "In addition to the COVID-19 crisis, we have also had to deal with the grounding of the 737 MAX. You can be assured that we are doing everything in our power to get our members back on the job and doing everything possible, including securing swift TAA help, for those who remain on layoff. District 751 and our union are going to make it through this crisis stronger than ever."

Martinez also congratulated retiring District 751 Secretary-Treasurer Susan Palmer on a historic career and welcomed incoming Secretary-Treasurer Richard Jackson in his new role.

"This is a significant chapter in the history of District 751," said IAM Western Territory General Vice President Gary R. Allen. "Brothers Jon Holden and Richard Jackson have always displayed great leadership and sincere dedication to the membership of the district. I congratulate them both as well as district will be ready."

After administering the oath of office to District 751 District Council Delegates and Alternates (from all 7 locals), as well as our 16 elected Business Reps, IAM International President Robert Martinez and General Vice President of the Western Territory Gary Allen addressed 751 leaders with words of support and encouragement. Lessons from 2020: We Need Access to Affordable Health Care, Reliable Internet Access, and Our Pensions Protected

By JACKIE BOSCHOK

President IAM 751 Retirement Club and President of the Washington State Alliance for Retired Americans (WSARA)

(Reprinted from The Stand on Jan. 11, 2021) — We have all learned a lot this past year and have been forced to face some ugly truths that may have gone ignored for even longer.

For me, three lessons from 2020 speak loudest.

First, we need better health care, and greater access for vulnerable members of our community. The quality and availability of health care has been a long-simmering crisis in this country, which was brought into stark relief when our system of care had to stand up against a pandemic. We simply aren't equipped to deal with regular day-to-day needs, let alone public health catastrophes.

Second, reliable internet access is essential to more parts of our lives than we could have ever imagined.

And third, our economic and fiscal strength, as secure as it may look, is never guaranteed.

The pandemic and economic fallout has rocked all of us and, as I've written before, seniors have been one of the most impacted groups. Americans over age 50 represent 95 percent of all COVID-19 deaths. Assisted living facilities, the original epicenters of the outbreak, continue to require higher levels of staffing and more adequate PPE in order to handle both COVID-19 outbreaks and the vaccine rollout.

The Washington State Alliance for Retired Americans (WSARA) will continue to work with public health departments and Governor Jay Inslee's administration to speed up distribution of vaccines to seniors, front line workers, and others as quickly as possible. This requires not only coordination between government administrators and civil society organizations, but regular updates on availability and accessibility. WSARA will remain a resource for older Washingtonians as more information becomes available.

As longtime champions for expanded and affordable health care access in Olympia, WSARA members and 751 Retirees will be advocating for stronger standards for workplace health and safety this session. But we know, too, that folks will inevitably get sick, and that patients shouldn't have to choose between getting healthier and depleting their hard-earned savings. Prescription drug costs are outof-control, a burden that falls heavily on seniors living on fixed incomes.

We believe that legislation by Sen. Karen Keiser (D-Kent) to tax unsupported

State Senator Karen Keiser

prescription drug price increases is the kind of proconsumer, pro-patient policy need. The bill would utilize independent unsupported price increase report, which examines some of the worst Big Pharma offenders often brand name drugs that have been off patent for years, but game the system to protect their monopolies - to assess tax penalties on companies unnecessarily increasing the price of their medicines. This kind of price gouging not only harms individual patients, but the longterm fiscal strength of state health care programs for public workers and retirees, as well.

WSARA will also be a leading voice for expanded, affordable high-speed internet, ensuring that seniors have a seat at the table over negotiations around broadband access. Mia Gregerson (D-SeaTac) has become a leader in this space, shepherding a working group to examine these issues and introducing the Digital Equity Act, which would establish a state office of broadband, require telecom corporations to offer higher speeds and reach into underserved areas, and establish a grant program to improve access, skills training, and digital literacy. For seniors now dependent on telehealth to reach doctors, nurses, and pharmacists, as well as their friends and family, these are tenets of a healthy society. Digital connectivity is essential to bridging the generational and physical distance divide.

Finally, WSARA and 751 Retirees will fight to ensure that promises made to public workers, the form of pensions and other retirement security programs, are kept.

These commitments were made through solidarity and strength at the negotiating table years ago. They should be viewed as chiseled in stone. As we have seen, seniors who can depend on a secure retirement provide economic resiliency to communities in times of economic recession. They can spend, support local businesses, and generally put money right back into their communities.

> believe the legislature should strongly consider new revenue sources on the wealthiest individuals and corporations, rather than cut pensions or essential services, in order for the state of Washington to honor its guarantees to the hard-working men and women who served it for years. This must include pension protections for furloughed workers and

At the federal level, we continue to push to protect and enhance Social Security and Medicare.

In times of darkness, true leaders emerge, and older Washingtonians are ready and willing to support those who will fight for good policy when it's needed most.

State Rep Mia Gregerson

751 Retirement Club Legislative Report

by Carl Schwartz

Happy New Year to all our 751 retirees. We go forward into the new year with a new national administration and hopes that with the wide use of the vaccine the COVID virus will be brought under control, and we can begin to go on with a more normal life.

Both the U.S. Congress and our state legislature are active - even if in a somewhat "virtual" manner. Issues that impact us as Americans and as retirees will be considered and legislated.

Your 751 Retirement Club and officers will be contacting legislators to make sure that our issues and interests are considered and met. Making the vaccine available and providing access, especially for seniors, is a major concern. We will make every effort to insure that all the information is readily available (see article below). We urge all our members, and all seniors, to take the steps to schedule and get that vaccination.

Then we will continue to meet with the senior lobbying groups whether "virtually" or in person (six feet apart) to firm up our positions and advocate for their enactment.

How Seniors Can Sign up for COVID Vaccine

With the Governor's announcement that the state is opening "Phase 1B1," more people in our state who have been among the hardest hit now have an opportunity for additional protection. This group includes adults age 65 and over and people age 50 and older who meet certain risk criteria and live in intergenerational households.

This is great news – but it is important for everyone to know that due to limited supply of vaccine nationally and locally, not everyone who is now eligible will be able to access a vaccine right away. Access will improve as the supply increases and providers receive more doses.

If you don't have a provider or if your provider doesn't have the vaccine available, Washington State's Phase Finder online tool can confirm your eligibility and provide you with a list of possible vaccination locations. This is currently available in English and Spanish and the state has more language versions coming at form.FindYourPhaseWA.org.

If you don't have web access to use the Phase

Finder tool and have no one to assist you, you can get help over the phone from Washington State's COVID-19 Assistance Hotline: Dial 1-800-525-0127, then press #. Help is available Monday-Friday, 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday, Sunday, and observed state holidays 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

To see a directory of COVID-19 vaccine providers Washington State: https://www.doh.wa.gov/ YouandYourFamily/Immunization/VaccineLocations.

The WSLC has launched a COVID Vaccination Information resource for unions to protect their members' interests and for rank-and-file members to get all the facts they need to make an informed choice when they have the opportunity to get vaccinated. Visit https://www.wslc.org/covid-vaccine/

February brought retirement for two of our long-time female Union leaders as District Secretary-Treasurer Susan Palmer and Business Rep Dena Bartman retired. Both have been strong advocates for all members throughout their long careers and worked their way up through the ranks of leadership.

Susan Palmer:

Susan has been an active IAM member for more than 34 years. She is our longest serving Secretary-Treasurer, holding the position for 15 years. Yet she has held many other important Treasurer leadership roles inside our union and in the community. She has served as Secretary-Treasurer of the Washington Machinists Council since 2007, served on the Benefits Committee at Boeing since 1999, as well as being elected as an IAM delegate to the AFL-CIO since 2016.

becoming Secretary-Prior to Treasurer, Susan served 9 years as an elected Business Rep in Everett where her assignment included the wire shop, 767 line, crane crew, facilities maintenance groups and several other buildings. She also filed the first grievance in the wire shop on the Self Inspection & Acceptance program in 1999, which resulted in LOU #38 being negotiated into our 2002 contract and still remains today.

She hired into the Renton plant in 1986 as a storekeeper, transferred into expedite the next year, then took classes and promoted to an MRSA inspector job. From the start, she was active in the Union and served as a vocal Steward for 8 and members. Susan's passion is helping others, which is evident in the many boards and committees she has served on. She served 20+ years on the 751 Women's Committee (5 years as chair) - mentoring many other women into leadership roles. She also founded the District 751 Women's Committee Fun Run that ran for 18 years straight, raising over $200,000 for Guide Dogs of America – until in its 19th year was canceled due to COVID. She was active on the Legislative Committee, in the Coalition of Labor Union Women,

She has also been a leader in many other organizations that serve our communities. This includes serving on the Board of Directors for the Puget Sound Labor Agency since 2007, Board of Trustees for Renton Technical College (RTC) since 2011, RTC Foundation Board of Directors since 2016, King County Housing volunteered on various community service events, helped organize and support multiple fundraisers for Guide

Dogs of America, and much more.

Authority Board of Commissioners since 2012, and United Way of King County Board of Directors 2012-2015.

Dena Bartman:

Dena has been a strong leader and vocal advocate for our members since she hired into Boeing in 1988. For the past 6.5 years, Dena has diligently served as a hard fighting business rep - first at the Everett plant, then covering Seattle/ Renton flightline, Spares Distribution Center and other buildings along the Seattle corridor. As a BR, she remained visible on the shop floor - letting management know if they violated the contract, she would be there. Stewards and members appreciated her visibility and tenacious spirit - taking on any issues that might arise in her assignment.

She hired into Boeing in 1988 as a Dispatch Clerk in Auburn. She took classes to become an inspection coordinator. and continued with additional classes to become an inspector. She served more than 13 years as a Union Steward where she fought daily to enforce the contract and protect workers' rights until she accepted a full time union role in 2011 as an IAM-Boeing Joint Programs Coordinator - helping to implement and manage a peer mentoring program in Renton. On the shop floor, Dena was a vocal advocate and strong leader holding various positions including District Council Delegate, Local F Trustee, and Local F Audit Committee.

She has long been passionate about promoting workplace safety - serving years on the Health & Safety Institute Site Safety Committee, as well as the District Safety Committee, which she chaired for a year. In addition, she co-chaired the

In every position or project, she remained a strong voice for the members and an advocate for improving the lives of others. Her belief in our Union core values is why she has volunteered numerous hours and weekends on organizing drives to bring the benefits of union membership to other workers in our state

Both Susan and Dena have been fearless leaders who have helped countless members and citizens in our community. Congratulations on a welldeserved retirement. Both will be greatly missed.

MLK March Promotes Good Trouble in a Pandemic

With the global pandemic continuing, District 751 did not encourage Stewards or members to attend this year's Martin Luther King Jr. rally and march; however, a number of 751 members attended on their own and used PPE to keep them safe.

The march carried on the message of Dr. King and this year also honored Civil Rights Legend John Lewis, who passed away in 2020 after devoting a lifetime to the movement.

Local 751-A President Matt Hardy helped with the collections at the annual MLK rally and celebration.

EASTERN WASHINGTON

New Contract Approved at Durham School Services

Machinists Union members who work at Durham School Services voted to approve a new three-year contract on January 7th. These talented technicians maintain the buses and vehicles used to transport students in the Spokane Public Schools.

Last year prior to COVID, the group approved a one-year contract extension that delivered significant pay raises (8-15% depending on classification) for all and upgraded four mechanics to the highest paid Tech 1 position.

After COVID hit, the Spokane schools closed. Throughout the year, our Union worked with Durham to keep all members working during the global pandemic. Work shifted from maintenance to preparing new buses for service, installing after-market systems, and other work found on site. The Company understood the importance of keeping these talented mechanics on their payroll for when schools reopened and the full workload returned.

In December, our members held a shop meeting at lunch to review survey results, identify top issues and discuss the strike sanction and negotiation process. Members then demonstrated their solidarity and determination to achieve a fair contract by overwhelmingly approving strike sanction authorization.

On January 7, members voted to approve a new three-year agreement.

Machinists Union members working at Durham School Services remained united and approved a new contract on Jan. 7th. Photo above in the shop where Business Rep Steve Warren joined them to discuss top issues.

The contract delivered raises in each of the three years. Because of Durham's financial situation, yearly raises are delayed until August of each year, which marks the start of a new school year. While all members preferred getting the raises sooner, they recognized Durham has kept all mechanics on the payroll despite their decrease in work and revenue during the pandemic.

The new contract also maintained the current health and welfare package for the life of the agreement and increased lead pay premium from 50¢ to $1 per hour. The contract introduced the new paid FMLA with the Company paying 100% of the premium.

The new contract also introduced a company-paid, short-term disability plan, which represented a compromise, as the Company proposed eliminating the previously unlimited sick leave members could bank and now limit it to 30 days. The contract ensures no current member will lose any sick leave already accrued (some long-term members have 500 to 1,000 hours). Members currently above the 30-day limit will not accrue new sick leave until they are below the new contractual limit. The short-term disability insurance will help our members during any potential medical leave or surgery.

"Our members were able to recognize the contract was fair given the current financial situation during the pandemic," said Joe Marek, who is a Union Steward and served on the negotiating committee, along with Business Rep Steve Warren.

Union Ensures Member Is Back at Work After Unjust Termination

"It pays to be union" is more than just a slogan to Machinists Union member Tom Mayer. Thanks to action by our Union, Tom's unjust termination was overturned, and he is back on the job working as a helicopter mechanic at Fairchild Air Force Base.

"I appreciate having our Union as an advocate on my behalf. Our Union is 100 percent the reason I have my job today," said Tom. "Without our Union, I would have had no way to challenge my employer's decision."

"This isn't just my fight; I fought so the Company can't do this to another person," Tom added. "How many workers don't stand up and fight but simply accept what their employer does?"

When Tom left the military with more than 20 years as a helicopter mechanic, he wanted to work for contractors at the base to continue using his skills to help the military.

With nearly 10 years working on the base, Tom was stunned to learn he was being terminated following a leave of absence to have shoulder replacement surgery. He believed he had done everything according to Company policy, had filed for FMLA, and was working through the ReadGroup, which administers the Company's short-term disability plan. Within a week of his surgery, COVID hit. His physical therapy was delayed as offices were closed, which meant he had to extend his leave of absence. This is just another casualty of COVID – not being able to get the care he needed immediately after surgery.

Despite the unforeseen obstacles, Tom worked hard to regain his strength and mobility. His doctor ordered temporary medical restrictions to ensure his shoulder was properly healed. Tom communicated every step of the process to the Company and kept them updated on his progress and restrictions. When he called to get back on the schedule as he prepared to return to work, he was told the Company had denied his workplace accommodation and light duty request, and as a result, he no longer worked there. They went on to say when he was 100 percent healed, he could reapply for his job if there was an opening, and they would consider hiring him back.

Business Rep Steve Warren talks with Tom Mayer regarding union action that ensured he returned to work after he was unjustly terminated.

Tom was in disbelief. There was no forewarning or indication his job was in jeopardy. Over the years, Tom had seen many others put on light duty and accommodated so he had no idea that temporary restrictions and a medical leave of absence might cost him his job.

He immediately called our Union for help. Business Rep Steve Warren, along with Union Stewards Jim Damico and Terry Wren, gathered documentation and other pertinent information. The Company denied the grievance so our Union continued to elevate the issue. With the grievance scheduled to go to arbitration and our Union attorney Spencer Thal highlighting the problems with their case, the Company caved and agreed to put Tom back to work and reinstate his seniority.

"I am so grateful for the Union, my Stewards, and Steve and Spencer's efforts on my behalf. It is 100% a blessing to have our Union," said Tom. "My record was spotless; I had never even been counseled on any issue. What happened to me highlights the importance of having rights on the job. Everyone can learn from this and understand how valuable it is to have rights on the job. You may never need those rights, but they are priceless should you find yourself in such a situation."

Tom's case reinforces the value of union membership and the fact that union members are no longer at-will employees. A company must not only show just cause for termination, but follow progressive discipline outlined in a union contract or have the discipline challenged through a grievance and arbitration process. Without a union, workers have no avenue to overturn management decisions.

This is just one example of how our Union is fighting daily on behalf of members in every workplace. A member could go decades without ever having an incident, but when it matters most, it is good to have our union as your advocate!
